To Whom It May Concern,

In alignment with our commitment to sustainability and environmental responsibility, Mickelson National Golf Club has begun irrigating the course with effluent water. This year [2023] marks the first full season Mickelson National utilized irrigation off the effluent storage cell within the wastewater treatment plant. I would like to assure you that the strict guidelines established by Alberta Environment are being adhered to as laid out in our approval (318866-00-00).

To date there has been no reports by the maintenance crew, club members, or public golfers about a distinct odor in the effluent irrigation water before, during or after watering cycles. We understand the importance of maintaining a pristine and healthy environment for both the golfers and the surrounding community and any discernible odor could potentially impact the overall experience for our patrons.

We value open communication and welcome any questions, concerns, or requests for further information.

Sincerely,

Robin Sadler, MS, AGS
Master Golf Course Superintendent
